

31st session of the Foreign Investment Advisory Council in Russia

Dmitry Medvedev's opening remarks:

A session of the Foreign Investment Advisory Council in Russia

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen,

I cordially welcome you to our country. Traditionally, half way through the autumn at a session of the Foreign Investment Advisory Council in Russia, we openly speak about all pressing topics as well as discuss the steps that need to be taken to implement projects by major international companies in our country.

I hope this format is also advantageous to the Government of the Russian Federation, and, of course, to the global business community, which you represent.

This gives us an opportunity to promptly share opinions, discuss various ideas and approaches, plus get an assessment at the highest level of expertise, which may be even more important.

More to be posted soon...