

A 'win-win' for farmers, consumers and conservationists

A new study illustrating how British farms could produce more food while also supporting wildlife has been described as a “win-win” for farmers, consumers and conservationists.