

Academy NW seminar: “Prevention is better than court”

seminar audience

Thursday, 28 November, 2019

featuring

Tom Dooks | Senior Manager | Youth Justice Services (CE, CWaC, Halton & Warrington)

and

Sean Creaney | Lecturer in Psychosocial Analysis of Offending Behaviour | Edge Hill University

In this free seminar Tom will present a model for diverting children away from the criminal justice system, and explore the strategic challenges inherent in designing, sustaining and scaling out diversionary schemes. Sean will then examine the extent and nature of children's participation in decision making in youth justice. He will also critically explore children's ability to express agency and influence matters that affect them and discuss the challenges professionals experience when centralising the voice of the child.

For further details and booking follow this link

Published 30 October 2019