

AI set to revolutionise military engineering capabilities

An artificially intelligent tool will be able to solve engineering problems in seconds by identifying faults with equipment before they become problematic.