

Ambassador Nick Whittingham presents credentials to President Juan Orlando Hernández

World news story

The British Ambassador to Honduras, Nick Whittingham, presented his credentials to President Juan Orlando Hernández on 8 March.

The event took place during a virtual ceremony held between the Honduran Embassy in Guatemala and Tegucigalpa.

Ambassador Whittingham conveyed greetings to the Head of State from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, and expressed great interest in working with the government of Honduras to strengthen our political and commercial ties with the United Kingdom.

After the ceremony, Ambassador Whittingham explained about some of his top priorities in Honduras, including spur our bilateral economic relationship, work on climate change issues, and keep strengthening the rule of law.

Mr. Nick Whittingham was appointed Her Majesty's Ambassador to the Republic of Guatemala and Her Majesty's Non-Resident Ambassador to the Republic of Honduras in April 2019. The Ambassador arrived to the region in September 2019.

He will have presence in social media through Twitter, @UKinHonduras and Facebook.

Published 9 March 2021