

Animals: Art, Science and Sound

Animals: Art, Science and Sound is the first major exhibition to explore the many different ways in which animals have been written about, visualised and recorded over time. Focusing on the British Library's extensive natural history collections, the exhibition brings together chronologically and geographically diverse material produced over the past...