

Discontented Iranians march through central Tehran, chanting 'death to the dictator'

Tue, 2021-07-27 15:24

LONDON: Disgruntled Iranians held protests in central Tehran on Monday.

Demonstrating in Jomhuri Avenue and other parts of central Tehran, angry protestors shouted "death to the dictator," and "Khamenei, shame on you, leave our nation alone."

Other chants from the crowd included "Tanks, guns (are not going to save your regime), the mullahs must go," and "Neither Gaza, nor Lebanon, I sacrifice my life for Iran."

The Tehran protests come after recent violent protests over water shortages in Iran's southwest Khuzestan province.

Ahwazi Arabs are one of the largest minority groups living in Iran and most of them live in Khuzestan.

Protesters, rights groups and activists say the water demand by Ahwazi Arabs is part of wider discontent over historic and systematic racial discrimination.

The President-elect of the National Council of Resistance of Iran (NCRI) Maryam Rajavi praised the protestors in Tehran.

"The sacrifices of martyrs in Khuzestan now echoes in the cries of "Death to the dictator" in Tehran's central streets, near Khamenei's headquarters. The uprising continues on for the twelfth day and shows that the henchman of the 1988 Massacre cannot save Khamenei from his inevitable destiny," Rajavi said.

Main category:

Middle-East

Tags:

Middle East

Iran

Iran protests

UN human rights chief condemns Iranian attacks on water-crisis protesters
Video shows Iranian police opening fire during water protest

Egypt officials: Cairo apartment building collapses; 1 dead

Author:

AP

ID:

1627388950414086500

Tue, 2021-07-27 15:42

CAIRO: An apartment building in the Egyptian capital of Cairo collapsed on Tuesday, killing a man while rescue workers hours later pulled his wife alive from under the rubble, officials said.

The woman spent more than five hours buried under the rubble of the four-story building in the city's Waraq neighborhood, officials said. She was taken to hospital. No other residents were believed to be inside the building at the time of the collapse.

Earlier, the rescuers had managed to locate and speak with the woman – even passing her a bottle of water, the officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk to the media.

Prosecutors opened an investigation, the state-run MENA news agency reported. It wasn't immediately clear what caused the collapse but such incidents are common in Egypt, where shoddy construction is widespread in shantytowns, poor city neighborhoods and rural areas.

Last month, at least five women died when an apartment building collapsed in the Mediterranean city of Alexandria. Another building in Cairo collapsed in March, leaving at least 25 dead.

With real estate at a premium in big cities such as Cairo and Alexandria, developers seeking bigger profits frequently violate planning permits. Extra floors often, for example, are sometimes added without proper government permits.

The government recently launched a crackdown on illegal construction across the country, jailing and fining violators, and in many cases demolishing the buildings.

Main category:

Middle-East

Tags:

Cairo

Egypt

Building collapse

Cairo denies demolition of Egyptian Museum after opening Grand Museum Egyptian receives top Japanese honor for boosting Cairo-Tokyo ties

Egypt steps up efforts to meet high demand for water from Nile

Author:

Mon, 2021-07-26 22:58

CAIRO: Egyptian authorities have stepped up measures to ensure the country's water needs continue to be met over the coming months.

At a recent meeting of a committee responsible for regulating Nile revenues, members agreed to carry on operating water emergency units in all governorates to monitor river levels.

Mohammed Abdel-Ati, Egypt's minister of water resources and irrigation, presided over the meeting that was also attended by top ministry executives and leading officials from the National Center for Water Research.

The committee reviewed Nile River revenues for the current water year and supply issues during the current period of maximum need. Delegates discussed measures being taken by the ministry to ensure the most efficient management of water resources and contingency plans put in place to meet all water requirements.

Abdel-Ati pointed out the importance of maintaining constant checks on water levels, and the condition of canals, drains, bridges, waterways, and power stations responsible for supplying them.

He noted that the ministry and its agencies had efficiently managed the water system during the current period of high demand while also hitting sustainable development goals.

The minister added that the committee was regularly monitoring rainfall rates at the sources of the Nile and recording quantities of water reaching the lake of the high dam to ensure the most efficient management of water supplies.

He said rainfall levels were at present about average and that it was too early to make accurate predictions for the remainder of this year.

Main category:

Middle-East

Tags:

Egypt

Nile river

Egypt vows firm stance on protecting Nile water security: President tells ChinaBattle for the Nile: Why Ethiopia's GERD reservoir filling may be just the start of Egypt's worries

Biden, Kadhim seal agreement to end US combat mission in Iraq

Mon, 2021-07-26 21:27

WASHINGTON: US President Joe Biden and Iraqi Prime Minister Mustafa Al-Kadhimi on Monday sealed an agreement formally ending the US combat mission in Iraq by the end of 2021, more than 18 years after US troops were sent to the country.

Coupled with Biden's withdrawal of the last American forces in Afghanistan by the end of August, the Democratic president is completing US combat missions in the two wars that then-President George W. Bush began under his watch. Biden and Kadhim met in the Oval Office for their first face-to-face talks as part of a strategic dialogue between the United States and Iraq.

"Our role in Iraq will be ... to be available, to continue to train, to assist, to help and to deal with Daesh as it arises but we're not going to be, by the end of the year, in a combat zone," Biden told reporters as he and Kadhim met.

There are currently 2,500 US troops in Iraq focusing on countering the remnants of Daesh. The US role in Iraq will shift entirely to training and advising the Iraqi military to defend itself.

The shift is not expected to have a major impact since the US has already moved toward focusing on training Iraqi forces.

A US-led coalition invaded Iraq in March 2003 based on charges that then-Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein's government possessed weapons of mass destruction. Saddam was ousted from power, but such weapons were never found. In recent years the US mission was dominated by helping defeat Daesh militants in Iraq and Syria.

"Nobody is going to declare mission accomplished. The goal is the enduring defeat of ISIS," a senior administration official told reporters ahead of Kadhim's visit. He was using an alternate acronym for Daesh.

The reference was reminiscent of the large "Mission Accomplished" banner on the USS Abraham Lincoln aircraft carrier above where Bush gave a speech declaring major combat operations over in Iraq on May 1, 2003.

"If you look to where we were, where we had Apache helicopters in combat, when we had US special forces doing regular operations, it's a significant evolution. So by the end of the year we think we'll be in a good place to really formally move into an advisory and capacity-building role," the official said.

US diplomats and troops in Iraq and Syria were targeted in three rocket and drone attacks earlier this month. Analysts believed the attacks were part of a campaign by Iranian-backed militias.

The senior administration official would not say how many US troops would remain on the ground in Iraq for advising and training.

Kadhim is seen as friendly to the US and has tried to check the power of Iran-aligned militias. But his government condemned a US air raid against Iran-aligned fighters along its border with Syria in late June, calling it a violation of Iraqi sovereignty.

The US-Iraqi statement is expected to detail a number of non-military agreements related to health, energy and other matters.

The US plans to provide Iraq with 500,000 doses of the Pfizer/BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine under the global COVAX vaccine-sharing program. Biden said the doses should arrive in a couple of weeks.

The US will also provide $5.2 million to help fund a UN mission to monitor October elections in Iraq.

"We're looking forward to seeing an election in October," said Biden.

Main category:

Middle-East

Tags:

Iraq

United States

Joe Biden

Mustafa Al-Kadhimi

Daesh

Biden, Iraqi PM to announce end of US combat mission in Iraq
Iraq says militants planned other attacks during Muslim holiday

France says urgent Iran returns to negotiating table for nuclear deal

Mon, 2021-07-26 20:39

PARIS: France's foreign ministry said on Monday that Iran was endangering the chance of concluding an accord with world powers over reviving its 2015 nuclear deal if it did not return to the negotiating table soon.

"If it continues on this path, not only will it continue to delay when an agreement to lift sanctions can be reached, but it risks jeopardising the very possibility of concluding the Vienna talks and restoring the JCPOA,” or Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action, foreign ministry spokeswoman Agnes von der Muhll told reporters in a daily briefing.

Iran’s chief nuclear negotiator, Abbas Araqchi, said last week that the next round of negotiations in Vienna must wait until the new Iranian administration takes office in August.

The US responded by accusing Tehran of an “outrageous” effort to deflect blame for the impasse in the talks.

Main category:

Middle-East

Tags:

Middle East

Iran

US

France

Iran nuclear deal

Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action \(JCPOA\)

US accuses Iran of trying to deflect blame for nuclear talks impasseIran warns it can enrich uranium to nuclear weapons grade