

Helen Glaves elected as EGU president 2021-2023

BGS is pleased to announce that Helen Glaves has been elected as the President of the European Geosciences Union (EGU) for the term 2021 – 2023.

New report offers geological insight into global supply chain as demand rises

A new report by the British Geological Survey (BGS) looks into the worldwide availability of cobalt as global demand for the metal is set to increase dramatically.

New report offers geological insight into cobalt global supply chain as demand rises

A new report by the British Geological Survey (BGS) looks into the worldwide availability of cobalt as global demand for the metal is set to increase dramatically.

New report offers geological insight into global supply chain as demand rises

A new report by the British Geological Survey (BGS) looks into the worldwide availability of cobalt as global demand for the metal is set to increase dramatically.

BGS statement in response to OGA reports on induced seismicity – Saturday 2 November 2019

The OGA has published a series of commissioned reports on induced seismicity. BGS seismologists Brian Baptie and Margarita Segou were co-authors of one of these report entitled 'Statistical Modelling of the Preston New Road Seismicity: Towards Probabilistic Forecasting Tools' together with Simone Mancini (Bristol University/BGS) and Max Werner from Bristol University.