Al-Maktoum College is hosting its sixth Building Bridges Symposium this Thursday (4th November), on the theme of 'Together for Our Planet'.

Register for your free virtual place on its Eventbrite page here.

Tackling issues of climate change and environmental justice requires the worlds' societies and individuals to come together in common pursuit.

In conjunction with Scottish Interfaith Week 2021, it is hosting a free online event featuring experts within the field of sustainability and climate change alongside highly regarded academics. With the theme of 'Together for our Planet' also tying with the COP26 (United Nations Climate Change Conference 2021), the Building Bridges Symposium asks how faith, ethics and science can influence change in this global environmental crisis, inspiring and empowering adherents to action.

Scottish Interfaith Week provides an opportunity for interfaith groups, faith communities, schools, organisations and local communities across the country to celebrate Scotland's religious diversity by planning events that bring people together to promote dialogue, understanding and co-operation between Scotland's diverse religious communities and cultures.

Getting things done – Miller’s Wynd car park #dundeewestend

There have recently been complaints about some cars being parked inappropriately in the Miller’s Wynd car park, outside designated spaces and on the wood barking to the front of the community fridge.

I raised this with the council’s parking team on behalf of residents.

Getting things done – Riverside Drive #dundeewestend

Some weeks ago, I had a site visit with a member of West End Community Council and a City Council officer about several issues on Riverside Drive.

We agreed that some cycle parking provision just east of the car park at the Bridgeview Station Restaurant would be a good idea, particularly as there is plenty space for this.

I raised this with the City Development Department at the council and received a positive response. The Senior Project Officer, Active Travel Strategy has now advised further :

“I am working on a wider cycle parking project which focuses on the city centre and I aim to fold the installation at Bridgeview into that wider package of works.

I have to complete the wider project by March 31st 2022 but I intend to have the work completed before then. I will of course provide you with a further update once I have more definite timescales from the contractors.”
