

Young persons in custody at Pik Uk Correctional Institution attain good examination results (with photos)

Young persons in custody (PICs) at Pik Uk Correctional Institution (PUCI) of the Correctional Services Department (CSD) were presented with certificates at a ceremony today (December 5) in recognition of their efforts and achievements in studies and vocational examinations.

Over the past year, a total of 68 young PICs at PUCI sat various academic and vocational examinations, including the Hong Kong Diploma of Secondary Education Examination (HKDSE), the City and Guilds International examinations, the Cambridge English Examinations and the General Aptitude Putonghua Shuiping Kaoshi, and obtained vocational certificates covering subjects such as Food and Beverage Services, Cantonese Cooking, Multimedia Design, Building Services, and Laundry Skill organised by the SideBySide, Christian Action, the Construction Industry Council, and the Vocational Training Council. During the year, the PICs attained nine merits out of 121 certificates obtained. In the ceremony today, 38 young PICs were presented with 77 certificates, of which eight merits were attained.

Officiating at the ceremony, the Chairman of the Board of Directors of Sik Sik Yuen (SSY), Mr Lai Chak-sum, said that SSY is fully supportive of the rehabilitation work of the CSD, and set up the Sik Sik Yuen – Care and Rehabilitation Education Fund in March 2023 with the aim of providing subsidies to needy PICs to pursue continuing education and vocational training. He encouraged PICs to unleash their potentials in different areas and actively equip themselves, with a view to leveraging their strengths to contribute to the community in the future.

During the ceremony, volunteer tutor and saxophonist Timothy Sun partnered with a band composed of PICs to stage a music performance, hoping to convey gratitude to their family members and correctional officers for their support in the course of rehabilitation.

In the sharing session, a young PIC expressed gratitude for his mother's unwavering support as well as the guidance and encouragement from correctional officers, which have helped him get back on his feet to not only study diligently and sit the HKDSE but also cultivate his interest in music composition. His mother also shared the happiness of witnessing the positive changes in her son, and appreciated correctional officers for walking hand in hand with her son on the path to rehabilitation, helping him turn over a new leaf.

Also attending the ceremony were representatives of non-governmental and community organisations, community leaders and family members of the certificate recipients.

PUCI has a capacity of 385 penal places for young male remand and sentenced PICs. The Department provides half-day education programmes and half-day vocational training for young PICs to help them rehabilitate and prepare for their reintegration into society.

Remarks by CE at media session with newly appointed Principal Officials

(with photos/video)

Following are the remarks by the Chief Executive, Mr John Lee, at a media session with the newly appointed Secretary for Transport and Logistics, Ms Mable Chan, and Secretary for Culture, Sports and Tourism, Miss Rosanna Law, today (December 5):

Reporter: Good afternoon, Mr Lee. Firstly, we wanted to ask about your consideration in why you decided to replace Yeung and Lam in your administration, especially at this point during in your term. Does this move mean that your criteria for the continued service of your officials under your administration have changed? And, if so, what are these criteria? Are there any officials at risk of being replaced in the future if they do not meet these expectations? And secondly, what do you hope for these two new ministers to accomplish, as they have only two years or so to deliver on your government's promises? And what are your expectations that you've set for them so far? Thank you.

Chief Executive: I have made my decision through a period of observation, judged what I want to do in the years to come, and assessed what will make my governance even more effective and fulfilling. I appreciate the leadership, the articulation skills, and also the proactiveness of Ms Chan and Miss Law, because these are exactly what I need in the years to come to ensure that we will reap the best results and also to ensure good governance.

I regard the importance of a leader being, first of all, forthcoming, being able to anticipate problems, find solutions, and also build up the team, and the leadership skills, articulation skills, and also the proactiveness of Ms Chan and Miss Law fit exactly my requirements and what I regard as the essential success factors of a leader and a secretary. This is the reason why I made my decision. Second, I want to create the best results in the shortest period of time for Hong Kong, because we have lost time during COVID, and we have lost time because of the 2019 riots and black violence. I have said many times that I want to recover the time. I want to chase back the results and time, and I see the strengths of the two newly appointed secretaries. They will be assisting me more to realise my goal of ensuring results and also doing as much work as possible in the coming years.

I am pleased with the team I have now with the two newly appointed secretaries joining us. All the team members now are able people, who will be implementing my governance philosophies and aims, and are willing to take up challenges, make tough decisions, build the teams, and lead the officials to do what will be in alignment with my governance philosophies and aims. I am very confident that my present team will work closely with me, unite together, and produce the best results of governance, serving the best interests of Hong Kong.

Two years and a half is a long time. I have assumed office for two and a half years, and I think the majority of the community, by and large, agrees with the policy aims and strategies that I have set, and there are some independent assessments of what Hong Kong has been performing in these two and a half years. For example, in a lot of rankings when compared with our global competitors, we have moved up places, including in the area of international financial centre – we are now back to the third. We have also increased our competitiveness – we are ranked number five. We have actually made progress in a lot of areas. Two and a half years is a long time, and I do think that we can make the best use of this period to create the best and the most results for the people of Hong Kong, so that we can all reap the benefits of our economic development and also other policy measures.

Reporter: Former Secretary Yeung oversaw projects meant to boost Hong Kong's appeal to tourists after the pandemic, such as mega events, Night Vibes and Happy Hong Kong. Does his departure mean that those projects have failed, and how can Secretary Law do better to win back tourists? My second question is, the two ministers are part of your Government of "patriots administering Hong Kong". With today's move, are you sending a signal that being a patriot is not enough, and that a patriot can also lose their job if they are incompetent? And there were also reports earlier that you wanted to sack some of these ministers earlier, but Beijing intervened to avoid the appearance of infighting and disunity. Is this true?

Chief Executive: First of all, I have said that since the departure of the secretaries, and I am not going to comment, but I really think that they have contributed their best, made their best efforts for Hong Kong. So I thank them sincerely, and I hope that they will have a good life, a happy life, after their departure.

Each bureau faces different challenges and problems. That is the purpose of existence of the Government. We will try to solve problems every day. Some problems we may have solved already. Some problems may need a longer time to solve. But like any other city's government, we have problems to solve and problems pending to solve. One thing I'm very confident of is all the civil service officials working in the Government, whatever bureau it is, they are fully committed, and they serve with the purpose of contributing to Hong Kong. There are challenges every day, but they will continue to contribute their best.

And I think with the appointment of Miss Law, who impresses me as a leader who has good leadership skill, being proactive, and good articulation skill, then the contributions the officials made in her bureau will be realised and appreciated by the people of Hong Kong. That is my philosophy of governance. Yes, everybody should work hard, but the leader should build a team to ensure that they will synergise, they will align, and one plus one is bigger than two, and also to explain policies to the community so that they understand the philosophy, the thinking, the challenges, the risks and the costs, and in due course, understand why all these policies are made, and what are the benefits and what are the price that we have to pay, so that they will appreciate their philosophy, and then will be able to support. I think Miss Law can do that and fulfil my requirement, and I'm sure that in the coming two and a half years, she will be exercising strong leadership. She will be ensuring the major issues that are under the parameter of the Culture, Sports and Tourism Bureau will be well taken care of, and I also have strong confidence that she will be bringing a feeling of a "new page" and fresh air to the overall implementation of policy.

And one other thing is, we are looking at people who will be doing things under the philosophy, "there's never the best, only the better". Yes, those who join the Government must be patriots, but I do not think it is right to try to create differences in a way that mislead people. All the people who have joined the Government are patriots, and I thank them for all their work, but I want to do more in this two and a half years. I want to get the people that will fit my criteria in building more results and ensuring the community understands and appreciates government policies. And I think I've got the best choices.

(Please also refer to the Chinese portion of the remarks.)

Expansion of Suspicious Account Alert for automated teller machine transactions

The following is issued on behalf of the Hong Kong Monetary Authority:

The Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA), in collaboration with the Hong Kong Police Force (the Police) and the Hong Kong Association of Banks (HKAB), announced today (December 5) the expansion of the Suspicious Account Alert to include transactions at automated teller machines (ATMs) (including cash deposit machines). Starting from December 8, 2024, 22 participating banks (see the list at Annex) will gradually implement the alert mechanism at their ATMs, and provide their customers with detailed information on the implementation.

The scope of the Suspicious Account Alert mechanism, which is expanded to include transfers conducted at ATMs (including real-time same bank transfers and inter-bank transfers, as well as cash deposits), will cover the majority of the public's day-to-day transfers. Whenever a customer conducts a funds transfer or cash deposit at a bank branch or an ATM, or via online banking, if the recipient's account number, mobile phone number, email address or Faster Payment System (FPS) Identifier is labelled as "High Risk" in the Police's Scameter, a scam and pitfall search engine, the customer will receive an alert to the associated fraud risk before confirming the transaction.

The alert mechanism was first introduced in November last year, with the first phase covering funds transfers using FPS proxy IDs. The alert mechanism was further expanded in August this year to cover internet banking and physical branch transactions. When customers initiate a bank transfer, banks will issue high risk alerts to customers based on data from the Scameter. In the third quarter of this year, banks issued over 24 000 alerts (Note), which reminded customers not to proceed with the high-risk transactions in a timely manner.

The HKMA reminds the public to carefully verify the payment details and the payee's identity before proceeding with a transaction. If in doubt, the public should immediately terminate the transaction. The HKMA will continue to work closely with the Police and the banking industry to assess the effectiveness of anti-fraud measures and actively combat digital scams.

Note: Based on data provided by the 35 participating banks (which offer FPS, internet banking and physical branch services) of the Suspicious Account Alert mechanism.

Hong Kong Customs detects case of precious metals and stones dealer carrying out specified transaction without registration

Hong Kong Customs yesterday (December 4) detected a case involving a local company that conducted a gold transaction valued at over HK$120,000 without registration under the Dealers in Precious Metals and Stones Regulatory Regime. The investigation is ongoing.

According to the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorist Financing Ordinance (Cap. 615), the Regime came into effect on April 1, 2023. Any person who is seeking to carry on a business of dealing in precious metals and stones in Hong Kong and engage in any transaction(s) (whether making or receiving a payment) with a total value at or above HK$120,000 in Hong Kong is required to register with the Commissioner of Customs and Excise. Any dealer, other than a registrant, who claims to be a registrant, claims to be authorised to carry out, or carries out any cash or non-cash transaction(s) with a total value at or above HK$120,000 is liable to a maximum fine of HK$100,000 and imprisonment for six months upon conviction.

Hong Kong Customs reminds all dealers that the transitional period for registration under the Regime has ended. Any dealers in precious metals and stones must obtain the relevant registration before they can carry out any cash or non-cash transaction(s) with a total value at or above HK$120,000.

For the forms, procedures and guidelines to submit applications for registration, please visit the website for Dealers in Precious Metals and Stones Registration System (www.drs.customs.gov.hk) or Hong Kong Customs' webpage (www.customs.gov.hk/en/service-enforcement-information/anti-money-laundering/supervision-of-dealers-in-precious-metals-and-ston/index.html).

Members of the public may report any suspected transactions involving precious metals and stones with a total value at or above HK$120,000 conducted without the required registration to Customs' 24-hour hotline 182 8080 or its dedicated crime-reporting email account (crimereport@customs.gov.hk) or online form (eform.cefs.gov.hk/form/ced002).

Departure statement by Secretary for Transport and Logistics

â€‹The Secretary for Transport and Logistics, Mr Lam Sai-hung, today (December 5) made the following statement on his departure:

I joined the Government to serve the community in 1983 and became a politically appointee in 2022. During this period, I served Hong Kong in various positions, and this has been the greatest honour of my life.

I am grateful for the trust of the Central Government and the support of the Chief Executive, as well as the help from my colleagues in the Government and friends in the industry over the years. It has been a privilege to work alongside all of you during this time, and I am honoured to complete my 40-year public service career as the Secretary for Transport and Logistics.

I wish the new Secretary all the best and firmly believe that the civil service team will continue to support her work and to propel the development of Hong Kong's transport and logistics sectors together.