Hong Kong Customs conducted a targeted operation between November 18 and December 15 to combat cross-boundary counterfeit goods destined for the United States. About 13 000 items of suspected counterfeit goods with an estimated market value of about $1.5 million were seized.

Through an intelligence exchange with the US Customs and Border Protection, Hong Kong Customs took enforcement action in the abovementioned period and stepped up inspections against suspicious express consignments destined for the United States.

During the operation, about 13 000 suspected counterfeit goods including mobile phones, handbags, shoes and clothing were seized.

Hong Kong Customs will continue to work closely with overseas law enforcement agencies to combat cross-boundary counterfeiting activities through intelligence exchanges and joint enforcement actions.

Under the Trade Descriptions Ordinance, any person who imports or exports any goods with any forged trademark commits an offence. The maximum penalty upon conviction is a fine of $500,000 and imprisonment for five years.

Members of the public may report any suspected counterfeiting activities to Customs' 24-hour hotline 2545 6182 or its dedicated crime-reporting email account (crimereport@customs.gov.hk).

Three offenders fined for illegal removal of asbestos

A person-in-charge of works and two residential unit owners were respectively convicted at the Kwun Tong Magistrates' Courts today (December 19) and at the Fanling Magistrates' Courts on December 12 and December 10 for contravening the Air Pollution Control Ordinance (APCO) by illegally demolishing asbestos-containing materials. They were fined a total of $16,000.

A spokesman for the Environmental Protection Department (EPD) said that the department conducted follow-up inspections after receiving reports from members of the public in May and June this year that corrugated asbestos cement sheet (CACS) roofing was being illegally dismantled at premises at Kwai Fat Building in Kwai Chung, Sun On Building in Sham Shui Po and Mei Kei Mansion in Cheung Sha Wan. After investigation, the EPD gathered evidence showing that in each of the three cases, written notice had not been given to the department at least 28 days in advance of the commencement of the works in accordance with the relevant statutory requirements. In one of the cases, no registered asbestos contractor was hired to carry out demolition of CACS roofing. The EPD therefore initiated prosecutions against the person-in-charge of the works and the residential unit owners in accordance with the APCO.

The spokesman reminded persons-in-charge of works and residential property owners that if their renovation and refurbishment works at buildings involve demolition of asbestos-containing materials, they must hire registered asbestos contractors to carry out the works in accordance with the relevant statutory requirements and the code of practice on asbestos control to avoid the release of asbestos fibres and to protect the health of members of the public and the workers concerned in the projects. Offenders will be liable to a maximum fine of $200,000 and six months' imprisonment. Meanwhile, contractors who carry out works involving asbestos must give not less than 28 days' written notice to the EPD prior to the commencement of such works. Otherwise, they will be liable to a maximum fine of $200,000.

Members of the public can help combat illegal activities and safeguard public health by calling the EPD departmental hotline at 2838 3111 to make a report if they witness any illegal works involving asbestos.

Update on latest MERS situation in Saudi Arabia

The Centre for Health Protection (CHP) of the Department of Health is today (December 19) closely monitoring 10 additional cases of Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS) reported to the World Health Organization (WHO) by Saudi Arabia from November 1 to 30. The CHP again urged the public to pay special attention to safety during travel, taking due consideration of the health risks in the places they visit.

According to the WHO, all 10 additional cases were male patients with underlying illnesses, with ages from 31 to 83. Among them, five had exposure to camels and consumed camel milk, and one has passed away.

According to the latest information, 2 494 cases have been reported to the WHO (with 858 deaths), including 2 275 in 10 Middle East countries comprising 2 102 in Saudi Arabia, 88 in the United Arab Emirates, 28 in Jordan, 24 in Oman, 19 in Qatar, six in Iran, four in Kuwait, two in Lebanon, and one each in Yemen and Bahrain.

"We will maintain close communication with the WHO and relevant health authorities," a spokesman for the CHP said.

"As countries in the Middle East, particularly Saudi Arabia, continue to report MERS cases from time to time, travellers should refrain from going to farms, barns or markets with camels and avoid contact with sick persons and animals, especially camels, birds or poultry. Most of the cases reported in the Middle East had a history of exposure to camels, consumption of camel milk or contact with other MERS patients," the spokesman said.

"Scientific evidence has shown that camels are reservoirs for MERS Coronavirus (MERS-CoV). Camels infected with MERS-CoV may not show any signs of infection. Infected animals may shed MERS-CoV through nasal and eye discharge and faeces, and potentially in their milk and urine. The virus may also be found in the raw organs and meat of infected animals. Therefore, the best protection is to practise good hygiene and avoid direct contact with all of these," the spokesman added.

From time to time, suspected MERS cases reported to the CHP for investigation involve patients with a history of contact with camels in the Middle East. The CHP strongly advises travel agents organising tours to the Middle East to abstain from arranging camel rides and activities involving direct contact with camels, which are known risk factors for acquiring MERS-CoV.

Travellers to affected areas should maintain vigilance, adopt appropriate health precautions and take heed of personal, food and environmental hygiene. The public may visit the MERS page of the CHP and its Travel Health Service, MERS statistics in affected areas, the CHP's Facebook Page and YouTube Channel, and the WHO's latest news for more information and health advice. Tour leaders and tour guides operating overseas tours are advised to refer to the CHP's health advice on MERS.
