Otherwise, the department is entitled to terminate the agreement and the licensee shall immediately vacate the stall.

All fair sites will be made available to the licensees three days in advance of the fairs (from January 20 to 22, 2025) for the setting up of stalls. In the event of any unforeseeable incident that will cause a shortening of the whole licence period (including the duration for setting up stalls and the business period of the fair), the Government has the right to postpone the commencement date and shorten the duration of the period. The let out price (licence fee) paid will be refunded to the licensee on a pro-rata basis without interest.

Stall licensees must completely remove the stall structure and all paraphernalia, together with all refuse, debris and unsold commodities (whether damaged or otherwise), from the licensed area before 7am on January 29, 2025 (9am for the Victoria Park LNY Fair).

The FEHD reminded licensees that the stalls are solely for the purpose of selling and promoting the sale of the permitted commodities, and no other activities are allowed in the licensed area. If the FEHD considers that any activity conducted by the licensee to publicise, promote, display, show or sell any permitted commodities in the venue is unlawful, contrary to the interest of national security, immoral or incompatible with the object of the LNY fair, the FEHD is entitled to direct the licensee to stop conducting such activities and the licensee must immediately comply with the direction.

Stall licensees should not destroy, damage or abandon any unsold commodities at or in the vicinity of the stall. They may surrender unsold flowers and plants left behind at the stall to the FEHD at no charge, cost or compensation whatsoever, before 7am on January 29, 2025 (9am for the Victoria Park LNY Fair).

According to the licence agreement, except inside designated stalls, licensees must not keep, store or use any compressed helium cylinder in the licensed area. Whereas licensees of the designated stalls may keep, store or use helium cylinders in the licensed area, the quantity of helium should be such that a licence is not required pursuant to the Dangerous Goods (Application and Exemption) Regulation 2012 (Cap. 295E), i.e. equivalent to 150 litres of helium. Sales of floatable LED glowing balloons and aquarium fish by stall licensees are prohibited at the LNY fairs.

In addition, as stated in the licence agreement, the height of dry goods stalls must not exceed 3 metres from ground level. The height of wet goods stalls and fast food stalls must not exceed 4.5m from ground level. For wet goods stalls and fast food stalls with a height of more than 3m from ground level, the licensee must, at his own costs, provide the FEHD with the original certificate issued by an authorised person, a registered structural engineer, or a competent person under the Construction Sites (Safety) Regulations (Cap. 59I) to certify the structural safety of the structure in the licensed area before the fair is opened to the public. The licensee must also affix a copy of the aforesaid certificate on the structure of the stall.

Public notices and details of the renting of 2025 LNY fair remaining

Government publishes report on latest manpower projection

The Labour and Welfare Bureau (LWB) today (November 14) published the report on the 2023 Manpower Projection. The projection indicates that Hong Kong is expected to face a manpower shortage of 180 000 by 2028.

The Government has been conducting periodic manpower projection (MP) exercises to assess Hong Kong's future manpower supply and requirement trends at a macro level. With 2023 as the base year, the latest round of MP projects the manpower situation five years ahead (i.e. 2028). In addition to overall manpower trends, the report provides a detailed analysis of the manpower situation in 17 selected industries, as well as occupations in demand and essential skills. The 17 selected industries include the eight key areas for the development of Hong Kong as outlined in the National 14th Five-Year Plan (the "eight centres") (Note 1) and nine significant sectors supporting local services and city operations (Note 2). Together, these industries cover over 2.8 million workers or 80 per cent of Hong Kong's workforce and contribute more than 70 per cent of the city's Gross Domestic Product.

In 2023, Hong Kong's economy gradually recovered from the pandemic which led to an increase in manpower demand. However, the local labour force (excluding foreign domestic helpers) had decreased for three consecutive years during the pandemic to 3.5 million, causing a tight labour market with a shortage of approximately 50 000 workers. Most of the selected industries experienced manpower shortages of varying degrees, with more notable gaps observed in some labour-intensive sectors such as construction, city operations, health services, accommodation and food, retail, tourism, as well as in the innovation and technology industry that the Government is actively promoting. Each of these sectors reported a shortage of over 5 000 workers. The manpower situation across selected industries in 2023 is at Annex I.

Hong Kong's economy is projected to grow by 3.2 per cent annually during the projection period, driving sustained high demand for manpower from major industries. By 2028, the local labour force is projected to slightly increase to 3.56 million. The supply of local manpower would nevertheless fall short to meet the rising demand, resulting in a widening manpower shortage of 180 000, an increase of 130 000 from 2023. Due to an ageing workforce and a lack of new entrants, the projection indicates that there would be a severe shortage of "skilled technical workers", accounting for over one-third of the total shortage in 2028. All selected industries are projected to face manpower shortages of varying degrees. The respective shortage of 10 industries would exceed 10 000 workers. The projected manpower situation for the selected industries in 2028 is at Annex II.

Looking ahead, economic restructuring, technology advancement, business automation and digitalisation across industries would alter demand for job roles and skills in the market. Even conventional industries like the legal services and accountancy are embracing digital transformation. Some traditional positions (such as clerical and administrative roles performing routine and mundane tasks) may gradually be replaced by automation. Meanwhile, there would be rising demand for new roles related to digitalised operations (such as artificial intelligence (AI) specialists, data analysts and information technology experts). Therefore, the labour force on the one hand should need to master core skills being sought in the market (such as language proficiency, communication skills, teamwork and problem-solving abilities), but also need to acquire new operational skills (such as e-commerce and AI applications) in response to industry transformations and changes in operational models on an ongoing basis to remain competitive.

The Secretary for Labour and Welfare, Mr Chris Sun, stated, "According to the latest MP findings, there would be severe manpower shortages in Hong Kong in the next five years. The Government and all quarters of the community should collaborate to address this challenge and consider how to put our precious workforce to good use, enhance the quality and quantity of local manpower and increase overall productivity with a view to promoting the high-quality development of Hong Kong. The Government would enhance and expand local training to preserve the competitiveness of the local workforce amidst the rapidly changing market. In facing the challenge of manpower shortages, Hong Kong would continue to import outside talent and labour at an appropriate scale to meet imminent needs."

The 2023 Manpower Projection report has been uploaded to the website of the LWB (www.lwb.gov.hk/en/highlights/manpower\_projection/index.html).

Note 1: "eight centres" are an East-meets-West centre for international cultural exchange, an international aviation hub, an international financial centre, an international innovation and technology centre, an international trade centre, an international transportation centre, a regional centre for international legal and dispute resolution services as well as a regional intellectual property trading centre.

Note 2: nine significant sectors are accommodation and food services, city operation, construction industry, education, health services, manufacturing, retail, social services and tourism.
