

Gender segregation at Islamic School ruled unlawful

The Court of Appeal has overturned last year's finding by a High Court judge that Ofsted inspectors were wrong to penalise the mixed-sex Al-Hijrah school in Bordesley Green in Birmingham.

Go to Source

Author:

Juncker is writing his list for Santa

The President of the European Commission's latest comments about Brexit are about as bizarre as anything heard about the subject. He has claimed among other things that it was the European currency that stopped a land war in Europe breaking out.

Go to Source

Author:

Negotiation 101. If we are prepared to Leave then things might progress

Reports that the EU nation states are to discuss a future trade agreement with the UK after Brexit show that it is the EU itself that is being intransigent, and that a policy of being clear that the UK could walk away from the EU with No deal is bearing dividends.

Go to Source

Author:

Further anti-business measures to be imposed by the Commission

The tobacco industry's smaller companies are facing worrying developments in the implementation of new anti-business measures drawn up by the European commission. The latest attack on small businesses can be seen in the new Track & Trace regulation.

Go to Source

Author:

Home Office not fit for purpose

David Wood, who until 2015 was head of Immigration Enforcement yesterday admitted that at least a million illegal immigrants are at large in the UK. That is a city with the population size of Birmingham. Wood admitted that there are 'enormous difficulties' removing overseas nationals but failed to explain what they are. Think-tank Civitas has suggested that illegal immigration is likely to be running at 150,000 year. That's on top of the near 250,000 net immigration of 2016.

Go to Source

Author: