Summary judgement on fraudulent invoices case: Sweden

On 20 December 2017, the Court of Appeal in Stockholm handed down a judgement in a criminal case against fraudsters who had sent misleading invoices to EUTM owners under the letterhead "OMIH."

The main charged people were sentenced to imprisonment for completed gross fraud.

The Court of Appeal also approved all claims for damages presented by some of the recipients who had made payments when they received the fraudulent invoices.

The Office has prepared a summary of the judgment which is available here

Debbie Abrahams responds to Government announcement not to appeal High Court PIP judgement

Debbie Abrahams MP, Labour's Shadow Work and Pensions Secretary, commenting on the Written Ministerial Statement announcing the Government will not appeal the High Court PIP judgement, said:

"The Government was wrong to bring in the PIP regulations last year and it was wrong to ignore time and time again the views of the courts.

"Labour supported the initial Tribunal judgment and pledged in our manifesto to reverse the PIP regulations.

"Serious questions remain including; how many people have been adversely affected by the Government's reckless decision to oppose the tribunal's original judgment? How much public money has been spent on lawyers, trying to defend the indefensible? And how quickly will people with severe mental health conditions receive the support to which they are rightly entitled?

"This is yet more evidence of the duplicity and disarray of the Tories' social security policies."

Allegations from East of England Ambulance service whistleblower are shocking and tragic – Ashworth

Jonathan Ashworth MP, Labour’s Shadow Health Secretary, responding to the claim that numerous patients in the East of England were harmed or died following significant ambulance delays, said:

“These allegations from an East of England Ambulance service whistleblower are shocking and tragic.

“We need urgent clarity about what has happened at this ambulance service. Families who have lost a loved one deserve nothing less than to be given answers.

“I hope the Secretary of State will confirm that a full inquiry will be established and come to the Commons on Monday to update MPs on what will happen next.”
