

Greenhouse gas guru debates cows versus cars

A global greenhouse gas specialist from California will lead a webinar looking at the role of livestock in the debate about climate change and greenhouse gas emissions.

---

Kirkton named Beef Shorthorn Cattle Society Focus Farm

Introducing Beef Shorthorn to a suckler herd at Scotland's Rural College (SRUC) has added an essential hardiness to cope with the extreme conditions at its Perthshire-based research farm.

---

Tropical livestock centre publishes ten-year vision

A livestock genetic research organisation involving SRUC has published its ten-year vision to support tropical livestock development and the lives of people who rely on them for food and income.

---

New degrees to support economic recovery

New courses which will equip students to support the country's economic recovery after the coronavirus pandemic are being offered at Scotland's Rural College (SRUC) from September.

---

Scotland's natural economy valued at over £29 billion per annum

A new report has defined and detailed for the first time the value of the 'natural economy' to Scotland's overall economic output, finding it represents more than a fifth of the nation's economy.