

Avian Influenza incursion risk raised to high in Great Britain

The risk level of avian influenza incursion in wild birds in Great Britain has been raised to 'high' following two unrelated confirmed cases in England