

Between 31 May and 1 June, Dmitry Medvedev will pay an official visit to the Republic of Tajikistan, where he will attend a meeting of the CIS Council of Heads of Government

The Prime Minister of Russia will go to Tajikistan on an official visit on 31 May 2018. His talks with President of Tajikistan Emomali Rahmon and Prime Minister Kohir Rasulzoda will focus on the further development of cooperation in trade, the economy, investment, energy, transportation, agriculture, migration and humanitarian fields. Bilateral documents are to be signed following the talks.

On 1 June, Dmitry Medvedev will attend a meeting of the CIS Council of Heads of Government taking place in Dushanbe. The CIS leaders will exchange views on the current state and prospects of their economic cooperation, discuss progress at the talks on the draft agreement on free trade in services in the CIS, matters related to innovation cooperation, the development of the intellectual property market, plus cooperation in customs affairs, education and youth policy.

While in Dushanbe, Dmitry Medvedev will hold bilateral meetings with the CIS heads of government.