

Blast at East China factory, casualties reported

An explosion on Sunday morning in a factory in East China's Zhejiang province has caused casualties, but exact numbers were not immediately known, according to local authorities and witnesses.

The accident happened at around 9 am in the plant in Jiangbei district of Ningbo city, causing some buildings to collapse, the city's fire department said.