

Blood test boost for dairy industry

A simple blood test could be used to predict the future health and productivity of dairy cows, research shows.