

Census and Statistics Department appeals to respondents to respond to statistical surveys through online and telephone means

As the local epidemic situation remains severe, a Census and Statistics Department (C&SD) spokesman today (February 17) appealed again to survey respondents to complete its surveys through online questionnaire or telephone interview in order to reduce face-to-face contacts. Details on how to use the online questionnaire and the enquiry telephone numbers of the surveys are provided in the invitation letters delivered to the respondents by the C&SD.

The C&SD conducts a number of statistical surveys continuously for compiling important statistical indicators such as unemployment rate, wage index and retail sales to reflect the latest social and economic situations of Hong Kong.
