

Climate change research wins PhD student prize

A postgraduate student at Scotland's Rural College has won a prize for her research looking at the effects of climate change on European grassland yields.