

CMA wins appeal in emergency services case

The Court of Appeal has refused Motorola permission to appeal the CMA's findings that it was making supernormal profits from providing communications network services to the UK emergency services.