

DBS has launched an official Facebook page

News story

The page will be used to promote our services.

The Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) has launched an official Facebook page.

The page, which launched today, can be found here, and will be using the account to promote our services, and provide users with the most up-to-date guidance and information.

Customers should continue to use existing communication channels to communicate with DBS if necessary, as opposed to contacting us via Facebook:

DBS is also on Twitter and LinkedIn.

Information about social media use, including how we moderate our accounts, can be found here.
