News story

The new five-year strategy focuses on our Profile, our People and Quality.

The Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) has launched its new five-year strategy, which details our ambitions for 2025, and focuses on three key elements: our Profile, our People and Quality.

The strategy, which can be found here, details a number of actions that will be taken across the next five years.

Our work provides significant protection to the public, and the delivery of this strategy will enable us to develop as an organisation, improve the services we provide, and support the contribution we make within the safeguarding community.
