

Developers given new tools to boost cyber security in AI models as cyber security sector sees record growth

New measures, anticipated to establish a global benchmark for enhancing the protection of AI models against hacking and sabotage, were unveiled today by the UK government.