

Diversity in the Media: reflections from the UK and Belgium

British and Belgian journalists share personal insights into the positive and negative impact of their identities on their professional careers.