

Drunk driving kills five in east China

Five people have been killed and another four injured in a traffic accident involving drunk driver in east China's Jiangsu Province, authorities said Wednesday.

The tragedy happened on a highway near Tangshe Village in Yancheng City, when the passenger car of an intoxicated driver, surname Wang, crashed into the victims, according to the local publicity department.

The driver has been detained, and the investigation is ongoing.