

Engagement with small-scale egg and poultry producers on disease must be improved

New research has revealed a gap in knowledge about disease control practices in many of Scotland's small-scale poultry keepers and egg producers.