

England's treasured island seabird populations to be protected with new government funding

Defra announces new funding to implement biosecurity measures that will protect important seabirds