Statutory guidance: Pelagic landing obligation 2018: Guidance

Updated: Text updated

The landing obligation, also called the discard ban, means that you have to land all the fish that you catch if they:

- are pelagic quota species, including blue whiting, boarfish, herring, horse mackerel, mackerel, Norway pout, sandeel and sprat
- include by-catch of quota species, such as cod and whiting
- include any quota fish that are below the minimum size

Statutory guidance: Demersal landing obligation 2018: Guidance

Updated: Text updated

If you target certain demersal quota species you will be subject to the demersal landing obligation (discard ban) from 1 January 2018. Not all demersal fish are immediately affected from this date because the EU is gradually introducing the new rules.

Which rules apply to you depend on the sea area you fish in and the gear you use. Find out which apply to you
