

Star students say goodbye to a popular Bill

A large group of distinguished graduates – including world champions, Olympians and company directors – have paid tribute to a popular lecturer who has retired after 36 years at SRUC.

---

Women in agriculture make their voices heard

Women working in Scottish agriculture will be “making their voices heard” at this year’s autumn conference.

---

Amazing Aimee named top British student

An SRUC graduate has described the “amazing feeling” of being named Agricultural Student of the Year at the 2018 British Farming Awards.

---

Plan now for the unexpected

With a “no deal” Brexit looking more likely than ever, farmers are being urged to ‘plan for the unexpected’ with the new edition of The Farm Management Handbook.

---

'Crash course' in animal breeding

World-leading livestock scientists will next month deliver a 'crash course' in animal breeding.