

First phase of university transformation plan announced

Proposals include new £35m facility in Dumfries & Galloway in SRUC transformation into Scotland's new rural university by 2022.

Blood test boost for dairy industry

A simple blood test could be used to predict the future health and productivity of dairy cows, research shows.

Planning for the Future

A series of 'Planning for the Future' roadshows, which will offer Scottish farmers advice on everything from accounting to writing a will, are to be held around the country.

Quality versus quantity

This year's Scottish silage crops are of high quality, but farmers must calculate stocks and ration to deal with the shortfall.

Future of golf to the fore

Scotland's Rural College is coming to the "Home of Golf" to bring together its expertise in the rural and land-based sector with the latest innovations in golf management.