

Aspiring farmers told “attitude is key”

Aspiring farmers were told “attitude is key” at an event for new entrants to the agricultural industry this week (Tuesday 26 February).

---

A ‘win-win’ for farmers, consumers and conservationists

A new study illustrating how British farms could produce more food while also supporting wildlife has been described as a “win-win” for farmers, consumers and conservationists.

---

Mongolia takes lessons from Scotland’s Rural College

A delegation from Mongolia visited SRUC to see first-hand how education is being delivered on the ground in the UK.

---

A celebration of citizen science

A celebration of citizen science following a year that saw more reportings of stranded marine life around Scotland’s coasts than ever before is to be held in the Highlands.

---

Supercomputers target TB

It is used regularly by global tech giants such as Google and Facebook, but now “deep learning” is set to become a key weapon in the fight against tuberculosis in cattle.