

Environmental scientists and experts investigate Teesside crab deaths

Environmental organisations have joined forces to investigate why thousands of dead crabs and lobsters have washed up along the North East coast.