Two documentary films scoop the 2017 Healthy Workplaces Film Award

The joint winners of the best film on the subject of work are Lewis Wilcox for "Before the bridge" (USA) and Tuna Kaptan for "Turtle shells" (Germany). The awards were presented by the European Agency for Safety and Health at Work (EU-OSHA) at the 60th International Leipzig Festival for Documentary and Animated Film (DOK Leipzig).

Fast moving technological and social changes in the world affecting us all and our vision of the future of work.

The winning film "Before the bridge" by Lewis Wilcox raises awareness of how automation will affect the future of humanity. The jury commented on the film: 'Fast moving technological and social changes in the world affecting us all and our vision of the future of work'.

The second winner "Turtle shells" by Tuna Kaptan is a multi-perspective film, exploring the connections between animal, man and war. The jury thought that the film was 'a complex and poetic discussion of dramatic turmoil in the contemporary world: war, migration and cruelty, which synthesises the unexpected, including our relation to the animal world'.

In addition, the jury gave a special mention to the film "Alien" by Morteza Atabaki (Turkey) about an old man working in a thread workshop.

EU-OSHA aims to foster discussion on the importance of occupational safety and health (OSH) in Europe. Through the creation and funding of the Healthy Workplaces Film Award, EU-OSHA hopes to build a library of films to raise awareness on OSH and to inspire directors to create more films on the subject of work, its changing nature and its effects on workers and their environment.

The directors share a prize of EUR 5 000 as well as DVD copies of their films. These DVDs will also be distributed to EU-OSHA's national focal points throughout Europe for screening, with subtitling as required. The screenings will aim to encourage debate on a variety of OSH topics, and new forms of work in particular; and to spread the message of the importance of safety and health at work to a wide audience.

The documentaries shortlisted for the award this year cover a range of work-related issues through thought-provoking and illuminating film-making: the struggles of small farmers in the UK, the dangers endured by workers in a high-altitude Bolivian mining camp and the dehumanising environment of a huge Indian textile factory.

EU expects solid progress on Paris Agreement implementation at UN climate conference in Bonn

The EU expects this year's UN climate conference (COP23) to reaffirm once again the international community's commitment to stepping up the global response to climate change and achieving the goals of the Paris Agreement. Following the entry into force of the historic agreement last year, elaborating its implementing guidelines is now a key focus. Commissioner for Climate Action and Energy Miguel Arias Cañete said: "The Paris Agreement has set the direction of travel for the global transition to a modern low-carbon economy. The increasingly frequent and intense extreme weather events we are witnessing across the world are a stark reminder of the urgency of the challenges we face. Now is the time to translate ambition into action and speed up implementation. COP23 will be a key moment to ensure that we are on track to meet our first deadline: completing the Paris work programme by 2018." This year's Conference of the Parties to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (COP23), presided over by Fiji, is taking place from 6-17 November 2017 in Bonn, Germany. The EU expects the conference to demonstrate clear progress on the development of the technical rules and guidelines for implementing the provisions of the Paris Agreement, for example on the transparency framework and the 5-year ambition cycle aimed at helping countries make progressively more ambitious contributions. The work programme is due to be adopted at the 2018 UN climate conference (COP24) in Katowice, Poland. Read entire press release and MEMO. Juncker Plan: new projects signed in France, Portugal and Romania worth €100 million

On Monday, the European Investment Bank (EIB) signed several new deals under the European Fund for Strategic Investments (EFSI), the core of the Investment Plan for Europe. In France, it is providing €43 million to Artee to make 2,000 buildings more energy efficient in the Nouvelle-Aquitaine region. In Romania, a deal with UniCredit will see an additional €50 million made available to small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs). Finally, in Portugal the EIB signed a €10 million agreement with Science4You, a company which makes educational toys for children. Speaking at the signature of the agreement with Science4You in Lisbon, Carlos Moedas, Commissioner for Research, Science and Innovation, said: "It is very satisfying to see Portuguese companies making such good use of the European Fund for Strategic Investments, with Portugal currently ranked in the top 5 of EU countries in investment triggered relative to GDP. The deal signed today with Science4you shows the positive impact that the Juncker Plan is having on small and medium-sized enterprises across Europe. In the more immediate term, this project will create more than 300 jobs in Portugal. In the long term, by investing in our children's education in subjects related to science, technology, engineering and maths, we are developing the next generation of scientists and innovators." Food waste: 3rd EU Platform delivers concrete results

On 7 November, the EU Platform on Food Losses and Food Waste \(FLW\) members will gather again to take stock of progress made in the implementation of the Circular Economy Action Plan and to discuss future actions to further strengthen the fight against food waste on the ground from farm to fork. Ahead of the meeting, Commissioner Andriukaitis said: “The idea of creating a specific Platform is paying off. After less than one year since its establishment the Platform is fully operational and delivering concrete results: EU guidelines on food donation have been adopted as the result of the cooperation among Platform members. This will ease the donation of perfectly edible food that otherwise would have been waste. Advanced discussions on food waste quantification as well as the introduction of new digital tools to facilitate exchange of information and best practices are also among the achievements of the Platform. However we have no time for complacency in our fight against food waste. For this reason I will keep on encouraging Platform members to put all the necessary efforts to finalise our next mission: guidelines on the use of former foodstuffs and the work on better understanding of date marking.” The Platform focusses on supporting members in taking effective action to prevent food waste by bringing together both public and private interests in order to foster cooperation amongst all key players in the food chain and accelerate the EU’s progress towards the global Sustainable Development Goal of halving food waste by 2030. State aid: Commission approves Belgian tax measures for maritime transport

The European Commission has approved under EU State aid rules the prolongation until end 2022 of various Belgian support measures for maritime transport. The Commission concluded that the Belgian scheme is in line with EU State aid rules, because it will provide incentives to maintain maritime jobs within the EU, whilst preserving competition within the EU Single Market. More specifically, it will encourage shipping companies to register their ships in Europe and thus commit to high social, environmental and safety standards. Belgium has also committed to a number of changes to its existing scheme to prevent any discrimination between shipping companies and registries of different European Economic Area (EEA) States and to avoid undue competition distortions. Commissioner Malmström travels to Moldova

Trade Commissioner Cecilia Malmström is in Moldova today and tomorrow, to take stock of the progress in trade relations since the Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Area (DCFTA) became effective three years ago. During the visit, the Commissioner will discuss successes and challenges faced so far in the implementation of the trade agreement, meeting with President of Moldova Igor Dodon, Prime Minister Pavel Filip, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for the Economy Octavian Calmîc, Mr Andrian Candu, President of the Moldavian Parliament, as well as business support organisations and representatives of civil society. State aid: Commission approves Belgian tax measures for maritime transport

Belgium has also committed to a number of changes to its scheme to prevent any discrimination between shipping companies and registries of different European Economic Area (EEA) States and to avoid undue competition distortions.

Under the Belgian scheme, a shipping company is taxed on the basis of ship tonnage (i.e. based on size of shipping fleet) rather than the actual profits of the company. In particular, tonnage taxation will be applied to a shipping company's

- core revenues from shipping activities, such as cargo and passenger transport;
- certain ancillary revenues that are closely connected to shipping activities (which are now capped at a maximum of 50% of a ship's operating revenues); and
- revenues from towage and dredging as well as onshore ship management activities, subject to certain conditions.

The Belgian scheme requires that if a shipping company wants to benefit from the scheme, a significant part of its fleet flies the flag of an EU or EEA

State.

In this respect, the Belgian authorities have committed to extend the benefit of tonnage tax to all eligible ships that fly an EEA flag. This will prevent any discrimination between shipping companies and registries of different EEA States and preserve internal market rules on freedom of establishment.

The Commission assessed the amended measures under EU State aid rules, in particular its Guidelines on State aid to maritime transport. It concluded that the Belgian scheme is in line with EU State aid rules, because it will provide incentives to maintain maritime jobs within the EU, whilst preserving competition within the EU Single Market. More specifically, it will encourage shipping companies to register their ships in Europe and thus commit to high social, environmental and safety standards.

Background

To address the risk of flagging out and relocation of shipping companies to low-tax countries outside of the EU, the Commission's 2004 Guidelines on State aid to maritime transport allow Member States to adopt measures that improve the fiscal climate for shipping companies. The most prominent of such measures is tonnage tax, whereby shipping companies can apply to be taxed based on a notional profit or the tonnage they operate, instead of being taxed under the normal corporate tax system. Only companies that are active in maritime transport (defined as the transport of goods and persons by sea) are eligible for measures under the Maritime Guidelines. In addition, under the Maritime Guidelines, beneficiaries are required to increase and at least maintain a certain share of their fleet under EEA flag.

Since 2004, the Commission's decision-making practice under the Maritime Guidelines has further clarified the eligible transport activities and compatibility conditions to ensure that the main objectives of the Maritime Guidelines are met. The Commission ensures in particular there are no spill-over of the favourable tax treatment of shipping companies into other sectors unrelated to maritime transport, that there are no discrimination of other EEA State registries, and that the aid does not exceed the ceiling set out in the Maritime Guidelines.

The Commission's most recent decisions concern the Swedish tonnage tax scheme (Case SA.43642), a German scheme for the reduction of social contributions for seafarers (Case SA.45258) and the Lithuanian tonnage tax scheme (Case SA.45764). The Commission had previously approved the Belgian tax measures in favour of maritime transport until 31 December 2012 in State aid case C 20/2003.

The non-confidential version of the decision will be made available under the case number SA.41330 in the State Aid Register on the DG Competition website once any confidentiality issues have been resolved. New publications of state aid decisions on the internet and in the Official Journal are listed in the State Aid Weekly e-News.
