State of the Union 2017: Commission unveils initiatives for an balanced and progressive trade agenda

The Commission today unveiled an ambitious package of trade and investment proposals for a progressive and balanced trade agenda. Those include a European screening framework to ensure that foreign direct investment does not compromise the EU's strategic interests, as well as three draft negotiating mandates for trade agreements with Australia and New Zealand, and for a multilateral agreement to create an investment court. The Commission also steps up further the inclusiveness and transparency of its trade policy by setting up an Advisory Group on EU trade agreements and deciding to publish as of today any new proposals for negotiating mandates. These initiatives – explained and put in context in a Communication: A balanced and progressive trade policy to harness globalisation – build on “Trade for All” strategy of 2015 and the Commission's broader Reflection Paper on Harnessing Globalisation from May 2017. State of the Union 2017: President Juncker strengthens ethical rules for Members of the Commission in new Code of Conduct

On the occasion of his 2017 State of the Union address, President Juncker announced a new Code of Conduct for Members of the Commission. The modernised rules set new standards for ethical rules in Europe. The announcement continues President Juncker's push for greater transparency since the beginning of his mandate and his recent proposal to extend the “cooling-off” period from currently 18 months to two years for former Commissioners and to three years for the President of the Commission. The proposed modernisation goes further by setting clearer rules and higher ethical standards as well as introducing greater transparency in a number of areas. It will also create an Independent Ethical Committee replacing the current Ad hoc Ethical Committee, to reinforce its status, to strengthen scrutiny and to provide advice on ethical standards. The Commission's Structural Reform Support Service (SRSS) now engages with 15 EU Member States to carry out more than 150 projects ranging from assistance for reforms in sectors from judiciary to digital. The structural reform assistance comes under the Service's €142.8 million programme from 2017-2020.

The role of the Structural Reform Support Service was mentioned in President Juncker's State of the Union Address. Valdis Dombrovskis, Vice-President for the Euro and Social Dialogue, will give an on-the-record briefing today in Tallinn on the latest set of reform support projects. On the eve of the informal ECOFIN, he said: "Today we are launching cooperation with 15 countries to design and implement important growth-enhancing reforms. I would like to acknowledge the leadership and efforts of the involved authorities. Reforms require investing political capital, which is not always easy. But experience shows that reforms pay off. They bring more jobs and robust growth." For more information on the Structural Reform Support Service, see the factsheet here. Solidarity with Italy: European Parliament backs Commission proposal for €1.2 billion of aid following the earthquakes

The Commission welcomes the European Parliament's vote on the proposal to grant Italy €1.2 billion under the EU Solidarity Fund, the highest sum ever mobilised under the fund, following the deadly earthquakes of 2016 and 2017. This exceptional amount will help Umbria, Lazio, Marche and Abruzzo heal and bounce back and, as President Juncker said, help people living in these regions turn the page on this painful chapter and build a new future. "We have repeatedly said that we would not leave Italy alone in this crisis and we are delivering on this commitment," said Commissioner for Regional policy Corina Crețu, "The EU cares. It is leaving none of its Member States alone in the face of difficulty. Both our emergency help response and long-term assistance are concrete expressions of EU solidarity with its citizens." The proposal now has to be formally adopted by the Council. The money is expected to be paid to Italy this autumn. More information on EU support to Italy following the earthquakes and, more generally, on the EU helping citizens and Member States at home is available online. L'Union Européenne investit pour une mobilité propre et rapide en Pologne

97,5 millions d'euros du Fonds européen de développement régional (FEDER) sont investis dans la modernisation de la connexion ferroviaire entre les villes de Poznań et Pila, dans la région Wielkopolska au centre-Ouest du pays. Les trains circulant sur la section rénovée pourront désormais rouler à une vitesse de de 80 à 120 km/h, ce qui permettra de réduire de près de 50 minutes le trajet entre les deux villes. La Commissaire à la politique régionale Corina Crețu a commenté: "De meilleures connexions ferroviaires sont essentielles à l'activité économique du pays. En réduisant les temps de trajet et en promouvant un mode de mobilité propre, ce projet améliorera aussi directement la qualité de vie des Polonais." Les 250 000 habitants du Nord de la région pourront rejoindre plus rapidement Poznań, la capitale régionale, lorsque le projet sera achevé en 2020. EU supports Greece following oil tanker spill

The European Commission has helped mobilise immediate support for Greece following a request for assistance to deal with a marine pollution incident in the sea area of Piraeus. Greece has activated the European Civil Protection Mechanism requesting a vessel to help with clean-up operations. The request was channelled through the Commission's Emergency Response Coordination Centre and the European Maritime Safety Agency promptly offered an oil recovery vessel as well as satellite imaging. "Our EU emergency centre responded swiftly to Greece's request and I'm pleased to see another concrete example of EU solidarity in action. The oil recovery vessel offered by the European Maritime Safety Agency has already started response activities in the affected area," said Commissioner for Humanitarian Aid and Crisis Management Christos Stylianides. The European Commission's Emergency Response Coordination Centre monitors natural and man-made disasters 24/7, including marine pollution emergencies and is closely monitoring the latest developments. The European Maritime Safety Agency manages a network of standby at-sea oil spill recovery vessels based in all the regional seas of Europe. European Commission launches public consultations to improve the security of EU citizens' documents

Have you ever lost your passport while on holiday? Did you ever need an emergency travel document to get home? Or do you worry that someone might make a fake copy of your ID card? The Commission wants to better address these issues by launching two public consultations to improve the security of EU citizens' documents, as announced in the 2017 EU Citizenship Report. Commissioner Jourová said: "EU citizens should be able to exercise their citizenship rights wherever they go. Having identity cards and residence cards that are more secure is crucial for security across the EU. We also want to modernise the rules on emergency travel documents to make it easier for EU citizens to access consular protection outside the EU." The first consultation will gather views on how to improve the security of identity cards and residence documents. The second consultation aims at evaluating the existing rules for emergency travel documents for people living or travelling outside the EU where their country does not have an embassy or consulate. Both consultations will run until 5 December 2017 and are open to all EU citizens. (For more information: Christian Wigand– Tel.: +32 229 62253; Mélanie Voin – Tel.: +32 229 58659)

Concentrations: la Commission autorise l'acquisition de MutRé par SCOR

La Commission européenne a approuvé, en vertu du règlement européen sur les concentrations, l'acquisition de MutRé par SCOR. Les deux entreprises sont basées en France et actives dans le secteur de la réassurance vie. La Commission a conclu que l'acquisition envisagée ne soulèverait aucun problème de concurrence, car les chevauchements entre les activités des entreprises sont limités. Leurs relations verticales sont également limitées. L'opération a été examinée dans le cadre de la procédure simplifiée du contrôle des concentrations. New rules adopted to finance the Single Resolution Board's administrative costs

The Commission has today adopted new rules on how to finance the administrative expenditures of the Single Resolution Board \(SRB\), the EU agency responsible for ensuring the orderly resolution of failing banks in the Banking Union. A strong Single Resolution Board with sufficient resources and highly qualified staff is essential for the Single Resolution Mechanism (SRM) to function properly and protect financial stability without recourse to taxpayers' money. The SRB has an autonomous budget, with a dedicated part for its administrative costs that consists of the annual contributions from banks. The administrative budget is distinct from the Single Resolution Fund (SRF), which works on the basis of contributions raised by national resolution authorities, which are then transferred to the Fund. Since it was set up in 2014, the SRB has collected advance payments for its administrative costs only from bigger banks. Today's rules require all banks in the Banking Union to contribute to the SRB's funding, in proportion to the resource requirements that they place on the Board, i.e. according to their size and the risks of their activities. The new rules, which take the form of a delegated act and will enter into force unless opposed by the European Parliament and the Council, will apply from 2018 onwards. Banks that made advance payments from 2015 to 2017 will be reimbursed for any excess contributions, as needed. Other banks will need to make back payments. The new rules are inspired by the European Central Bank's (ECB) supervisory fees, meaning that banks are already familiar with the calculation methodology. For more information, see here. Eurostat: Annuaire régional d'Eurostat 2017: Comment se situe ma région au sein de l'Union européenne? Faits et chiffres aux niveaux des territoires

Les chiffres nationaux seuls ne peuvent pas refléter le tableau complet et parfois complexe de ce qui se produit à un niveau plus détaillé au sein de l'Union européenne (UE). Les États membres de l'UE sont souvent comparés les uns avec les autres, mais en réalité, il est très difficile de comparer un petit pays comme Malte ou le Luxembourg avec l'Allemagne, l'État membre le plus peuplé de l'UE. Comparer des données à un niveau régional ou infranational est donc souvent plus révélateur et une telle analyse peut également mettre en évidence des disparités potentielles à l'intérieur des pays. En tant que telles, les données infranationales contribuent à améliorer la compréhension de la diversité qui existe au sein des États membres et à travers l'UE dans son ensemble. La Commissaire à la politique régionale Corina Crețu a commenté: "Je salue la publication de cet annuaire, qui est un formidable outil pour aider à la prise de décision. Ces données ont nourri notre analyse et réflexion sur l'état actuel de la cohésion économique, sociale et territoriale en Europe, que vous retrouverez bientôt dans le 7e rapport Cohésion." State of the Union 2017 – Trade Package: Commission unveils initiatives for a balanced and progressive trade policy

On 13 September, in his annual State of the Union address, President Jean-Claude Juncker stated: “I want us to strengthen our European trade agenda. Yes, Europe is open for business. But there must be reciprocity. We have to get what we give. Trade is not something abstract. Trade is about jobs, creating new opportunities for Europe’s businesses big and small. Every additional €1 billion in exports supports 14,000 extra jobs in Europe. Trade is about exporting our standards, be they social or environmental standards, data protection or food safety requirements.”

Following the State of the Union speech by President Jean-Claude Juncker, the Commission has today unveiled a weighty package of trade and investment proposals for a progressive and ambitious trade agenda. The proposals include the creation of a European screening framework to ensure that foreign direct investment does not compromise the EU’s strategic interests when it comes to security and public order, as well as draft mandates to open trade negotiations with Australia and New Zealand. In a move to make the EU’s trade policy the most transparent and inclusive in the world, the Commission has decided to set up an Advisory Group on EU trade agreements and to publish as of today any new proposal for negotiating mandates. Finally, today’s proposals include a draft mandate to start negotiations towards the creation of a multilateral investment court.

First Vice-President of the European Commission Frans Timmermans said: “For free and fair trade we need to balance the opening of markets for trade and investment as key driver of our prosperity with international rules that uphold our high standards and common values and protect our interests. This is why we propose as part of the trade package a permanent multilateral investment court that is fair and impartial. Such a court system will enable us to get the right balance between the interests of states and investors and the necessary democratic legitimacy by ensuring independence, accountability and transparency.”

Vice-President Jyrki Katainen said: “Global trade needs to be proactively shaped and managed to ensure it is fair, projects values and remains firmly anchored in a rules-based system. With the rising threat of protectionism and weakened commitment of large players to global trade governance, the EU must step up to take the lead. Our approach is balanced and responsible: we open markets, but we also set high rules and standards to govern globalisation, and we make sure there is a level playing-field. Trade enables EU's industry to thrive, it creates opportunities for SMEs to export and allows them to create jobs."

Trade Commissioner Cecilia Malmström said: "The world needs leaders in trade. The EU continues to champion free and fair trade, at the forefront of a group of like-minded countries. Today's package of proposals shows this leadership in action. It also demonstrates our determination to develop EU trade policy in a way that's as open and inclusive as possible. And in the coming weeks I will be working closely with the European Parliament and EU governments, through the Council of the EU, to move these proposals forward as quickly as possible."

The key elements of the package are:

- A proposal for a European framework to screen foreign direct investment. It will ensure that foreign investment remains a major source of growth in the EU while protecting the EU's essential interests. The legislative proposal is accompanied by a set of further measures that take immediate effect. These are detailed in a dedicated Communication outlining the strategic need for such a screening.
- Recommendations to the Council to open negotiations for trade agreements with Australia and New Zealand. These agreements would build on the recent successful agreements with Canada, Vietnam, Singapore as well as Japan among others, expanding the alliance of partners committed to progressive rules for global trade.
- A recommendation to the Council to open negotiations to establish a multilateral court for the settlement of investment disputes. This major innovation in global governance would be yet another step towards a more transparent, coherent and fair approach to deal with company complaints under investment protection agreements.
- Unprecedented transparency: With the publication of the draft mandates for bilateral trade agreements with Australia and New Zealand, and for a multilateral agreement on investment dispute settlement, the Commission has decided to publish as of now all its recommendations for negotiating directives for trade agreements (known as negotiating mandates). When they are submitted to the European Parliament and the Council, those documents will in parallel be sent automatically to all national Parliaments and will be made available to the general public. This should allow for a wide and inclusive debate on the planned agreements from the start. The Commission asks Member States to ensure the involvement of the relevant national and regional stakeholders in trade talks at the earliest possible stage.
- The creation of an Advisory Group on EU trade agreements. The group will allow the Commission to engage with civil society and gather more easily different perspectives and insights from a wide and balanced group of stakeholders, ranging from trade unions, employers' organisations, consumer groups and other non-governmental organisations. The creation of this Group is a continuation of the Commissions' efforts to make trade policy even more transparent and inclusive.

The details of today's trade package are outlined in the Communication on "A Progressive Trade Policy to Harness Globalisation". It is accompanied by a progress report on the EU trade policy strategy "Trade for All" looking at its implementation two years on.

Background

Global trade is a key contributor to a competitive and prosperous European Union, with more than 30 million jobs supported by European exports to the rest of the world. 90% of future global growth will happen outside Europe's borders. A globally integrated economy therefore continues to benefit both large and small or medium-sized European companies, as well as European citizens, workers and consumers.

In October 2015 the Commission proposed a new trade and investment strategy for the European Union, entitled "Trade for All: Towards a more responsible trade and investment policy". Today's Communication and the five initiatives are intended to build on this strategy in the context of the Commission's broader Reflection Paper on Harnessing Globalisation from May 2017.

Ombudsman welcomes proposals to strengthen Commissioner ethics and transparency rules

The European Ombudsman, Emily O'Reilly, welcomes the College of Commissioners' decision to strengthen the ethics and transparency rules governing Commissioners' activities, while in office and after they leave.

The measures, which include a much more detailed Code of Conduct for Commissioners and publishing the Independent Ethical Committee's opinions on Commissioners' post-mandate jobs, have previously been called for by the Ombudsman.

Ms O'Reilly said: "EU politicians and public officials must be held to the highest transparency and ethical standards. It is important that the public sees that the checks and balances the Commission has in place are working."

"Extending the cooling-off period during which former Commissioners and Commission Presidents must inform the Commission of their intention to take up a new post and tightening the rules on the declaration of interests should positively contribute to this impression."

Moves to make more information available about Commissioners' travel expenses are also encouraging as this has led to complaints to the Ombudsman in the past.

"I will examine the proposed changes in detail, in particular to verify that the new rules satisfactorily address issues that have been raised with my office," said the Ombudsman.

Background

The European Ombudsman has one on-going case concerning the Ad Hoc Ethical Committee. As part of the case, Ms O'Reilly asked nine questions about the role of the Ad Hoc Ethical Committee and how the Commission deals with the post-mandate activities of Commissioners, including its President. Among the changes proposed by the Ombudsman were giving the Committee a stronger base and the routine publication of its opinions.

In an inquiry Decision from December 2013 on the work of the Ethics Committee, the Ombudsman looked into whether the Commission should reform the Committee, with a broader and better defined mandate.

In a case – closed in 2016 – concerning a former Commissioner, the Ombudsman suggested ways of strengthening the Code of Conduct governing Commissioners.

The Ombudsman has an ongoing case concerning Commissioners' travel expenses. Proposed transparency changes in this area will feed into the Ombudsman's final analysis in this inquiry.

The Ombudsman investigates complaints about maladministration in the EU institutions, agencies and bodies. Any EU citizen, resident, or an enterprise or association in the EU, can lodge a complaint with the Ombudsman. The Ombudsman's powers include the right to inspect EU documents, call officials to testify, and to open strategic inquiries on her own initiative. For more information: www.ombudsman.europa.eu
