Improved e-filing for designs in Romania

The State Office for Inventions and Trademarks (OSIM) in Romania has now fully implemented the upgrade of its front office IT system, improving the e-filing for designs.

The OSIM's digital platform, developed in cooperation with the EUIPO's European Cooperation programme, helps filing design applications in a simple and efficient way.

The new e-filing service for designs allows users to submit design views in a digital format rather than on paper, which significantly simplifies the administrative processes and increases efficiency within OSIM.

The new service is able to process standardised, multiple and divisional design applications. It also provides user guidance through the sections, previous design applications as a template to import data, and improved fees details.

The EUIPO and its stakeholders are currently collaborating on five major European Cooperation Projects. The projects aim to benefit users across the EU by providing modern, state-of-the-art tools and services for intellectual property offices.

Venezuela: declaration by the High Representative Josep Borrell on behalf of the EU on the latest developments

On 16 December, the Venezuelan Supreme Court and the non-recognised Constituent Assembly stripped a further four members of the National Assembly – Jorge Millán, Hernán Alemán, Carlos Lozano and Luis Stefanelli – of their constitutionally granted parliamentary immunity.

This decision, that followed the Supreme Court's request on the basis of the Attorney General's accusations, is a serious violation of the constitutional provisions, the rule of law and the democratic principle of separation of powers. The ongoing actions against the members of the National Assembly, including harassment, intimidation and arbitrary arrests, are hampering the Constitutional work of the National Assembly.

The EU reiterates that a peaceful and political solution can only be achieved if the National Assembly, the only democratically elected body in Venezuela, is fully respected and its members can carry out their constitutional prerogatives freely.

Only a democratic path will sustainably resolve the Venezuelan crisis and bring an end to the suffering of the population. The organisation of free and credible internationally monitored presidential elections and the democratic re-establishment of state institutions, including the National Electoral Council (CNE) and the Supreme Court of Justice are essential for a lasting solution in Venezuela. In particular, it is of paramount importance that the National Assembly establishes a new, independent and transparent CNE, fully inclusive and balanced in its representation and composition.

The EU calls upon Venezuelan actors to engage in a credible, representative and inclusive negotiation and commits to support these efforts, notably through the International Contact Group. The EU will continue to monitor the situation and stands ready to use its available instruments to promote democracy, the Rule of Law and Human Rights, including targeted measures that do not harm the Venezuelan people. The EU will also maintain its assistance and consider further action in order to alleviate the humanitarian crisis in Venezuela.

ESMA: EU issuers need to improve their disclosure of alternative performance measures

ESMA's assessment of issuers' compliance with the APM Guidelines shows that there is significant room for improvement as only a minority of issuers comply with all principles of the Guidelines in their:

- annual earnings results;
- management reports; and/or
- prospectuses.

ESMA calls on issuers to improve their disclosures regarding APMs. In particular, issuers should enhance their reconciliations, definitions and explanations in relation to all APMs used. ESMA highlights that ratios and subtotals included inside financial statements may also fall within the definition of an APM and thus should comply with the Guidelines.

The Report highlights that the use of APMs is widespread in all sectors and within all regulated documents. Significant diversity exists in the number and type of APMs used, as well as in their labels and definitions. The most commonly used APMs include:

- Earnings Before Interest & Tax (EBIT);
- Operating results;
- Earnings Before Interest, Taxes, Depreciation and Amortisation (EBITDA); and
- Net-debt.

The report builds on a desktop review ESMA performed on 2018 annual financial reports, ad-hoc disclosures of annual earnings results; and evidence arising from National Competent Authorities' (NCAs) experience regarding the application of the APM Guidelines in prospectuses.

Next steps

ESMA expects issuers to consider the findings of this report when preparing their future communications to the market containing APMs, notably ad-hoc disclosures, financial reports and prospectuses. ESMA and NCAs will continue to monitor the application of the APM Guidelines and take appropriate actions in case of infringements.

ESMA will also address this report to the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB) as part of its contribution to the IASB's exposure draft consultation on General Presentation and Disclosures.
