

'Exercise for all': Challenging barriers to access for disabled people

This Disability History Month, staff from across the British Library have collaborated on a series of blog posts to highlight stories of disability and disabled people in the Library's collections. Each week a member of staff will showcase an item from the collections and present it alongside commentary from a...