

Fast track for public services: new planning reforms to speed up delivery of schools and hospitals

Public service buildings will be delivered more quickly through the planning system with a faster, more streamlined planning process.