

Fifty million more GP appointments delivered by the NHS

More than 50 million additional general practice appointments made available after government fulfils its pledge months early