

Foreign Secretary and Secretary of State Antony Blinken commit to make the special relationship closer than ever before

The UK and US will deepen their commitment to the economic and security relationship that has made them indispensable allies and trade partners for more than 80 years, when a new Strategic Dialogue opens in London.