

FRA further enhances its cooperation with civil society

Changes focus on strengthening the information exchange and interaction between FRA and civil society organisations on fundamental rights issues.

This includes using a variety of new tools, such as webinars, online meetings and regular consultations, and an annual civic space consultation. With these changes, the Agency aims to engage with the large variety of Platform organisations in a more tailored and theme-based approach.

More details on the new forms of cooperation with Platform organisations as well as information on how to register on the database can be found in the updated Terms of Reference. Interested civil society organisations can register on the Fundamental Rights Platform database anytime.
