

G7 nations to boost international research response to future crises

G7 science ministers have committed to strengthening international collaboration on scientific research, as nations work together to build back better from the pandemic.