

Government considers greater role for families in registration of deaths following inquests

Families could be given a greater role in the registering of their loved one's death following an inquest under a planned Government consultation.