

Government outlines new action to tackle radicalisation

The Home Secretary has announced a package of measures to better protect the public and young people from youth radicalisation.