

Government sets out plan to secure the long-term future of steelmaking and safeguard steel communities

The Government has launched a new Steel Council, made up of steel sector leaders, industry experts, trade unions, trade associations and devolved governments.