

Government to crack down on disruptive street works to cut congestion and improve roads

New measures could generate up to £100 million extra over 10 years to resurface roads across England.