

Health Secretary announces strengthened legal powers to bolster public health protections against coronavirus

The government has today introduced strengthened powers to bolster protections against the coronavirus outbreak for people in England.