

Housing targets increased to get Britain building again

The government has announced an overhaul of the planning system to fix the foundations and grow the economy.