

Influencers invited into National Highways control rooms as part of new safety campaign

National Highways gave a group of disability social media influencers a behind-the-scenes look at two control centres as part of a new safety campaign.